I am trying to build a version of the buffer circuit from Chapter 3 of Meikoff's Analog Circuit Design Using the HP-4095 (Intelligent Lab Manual), with 1 μ F and 10 μ F electrolytic caps and 10 kHz rated resistors.

I'm not sure how to correctly connect the low frequency resistors to the filters. simulate this circuit – Schematic created using CircuitLab A:

Notice that I didn't bother with the series resistor... simulate this circuit – Schematic created using CircuitLab Now, what do you think happens with that added resistor? Well, it forms a voltage divider with the input resistor, and that's a bad thing... because the divider turns the input signal into a higher frequency one, and the higher frequency signal appears at the output with a lower gain than the original input signal... (basecamp, simple_format) - killahcide Hey all! I'm in the process of migrating some code from a Java app that has a UI/MVC class with a LinkList implementation (uses the nav component of jquery) and i was wondering if there are any gems out there that wrap both LinkList and jquery plugin navigation. I like the idea of using the jquery url plugin (to make links that have?page=2 instead of href=#2 and i'm leaning towards these 2. However, i'm not using any of the native LinkList methods so i would have to build my own. I just wanted to check if there was something native out there first that would make this easy. As it stands right now i'm going to try to make my own libraries for LinkList and jquery plugin based url links. Any ideas? ===== killahcide I am aware that this question may seem like a duplicate of this question, but what i'm asking for is a wrapper of a linklist and a link plugin. The link/navigation plugin I am interested in is "url" ([I am asking about a LinkList and how i would create a linklist, essentially and when i want to jump to a specific page in the list. I've been playing around with ruby and javascript and i'll be looking for a solution in 2.1.0 or 2.2.0. My goal is 570a42141b
