Description: All Kalenjin words with automatic display of related cross-references, and Word search. Advertisement King George: A Spiritual Journey King George: A Spiritual Journey By Lion What I want to write here today will fall short of what you need to know about a man called King George. It will be short of the humbling experience of learning about such a man in his home, the story of my grandfather. I hope to share with you what I learned about the man who called himself King George of Great Britain and Ireland, as I grew up watching his story play out on the tiny TV screen at the end of a long dining room table at my grandparents' home. At that table the whole family would gather every day and the conversation would begin. Sometimes the conversation would be dominated by my grandfather, Maa Kariyo, who would speak on matters both political and spiritual. At other times it would be dominated by my grandmother, my mother, or me. But even in the midst of the man speaking, I could hear other voices of people who seemed not to be present in the room. They were outside, perhaps in the walls, in the ceiling, in the window. And I would understand what the people outside meant because I was the child of King George. He had been the great king of England, my people. And I, along with all the rest of the people of the world, had been his children. I was the great and powerful children of this man who ruled the world for two and half years, and ruled by the will of God, as King George himself was only human and would have us understand, just as every man and woman and child in the world was only human and would always be in need of the grace of God. King George had learned the power of the grace of God in his life, but I have learned it by being born into it. Every man and woman and child must learn this in the life to come. For the grace of God is the truth that sets us free from sin, and the power that makes us strong. Advertisement The grace of God as the truth. The grace of God is the grace of forgiveness, for if we are truly forgiven by God, then we are forgiven of all that we have done and have not done. So by being forgiven, we can begin to love and forgive. So the grace of God is what enables us to love and forgive others. The power of God is the power to live in the
