“We’ve chosen our path of authenticity with a heavy focus on science and technology,” said Daniel Nelson, Head of Live Services at Electronic Arts. “For the first time, we’ve harnessed the power of the latest in technology to deliver the most authentic and challenging version of FIFA yet.” HyperMotion technology is embedded within the new FIFA “Attack” and “Offence” buttons, making in-game passes, ball control, acceleration and power speeds much more responsive. The technology allows FIFA 22 players to respond with accuracy, making in-game passing and acceleration more responsive. The technology also enables players to hear the ball, ground reactions and acceleration forces of the ball, creating a more authentic experience. This is the first time players can enjoy the realism of the new “Attack” and “Offence” actions within a virtual environment. The technology also enables the game to capture players’ entire movements on the pitch, in stunning 4K resolution, and over-the-top camera angles that make every tackle and ball contact more dynamic. FIFA’s Goalkeeper is also getting the hype. Improved Awareness and Sensitivity modes adjust the performance of the game’s goalkeepers, making saving accurate and more intense. The game also includes “Goalkeeper Relaxation” technology, which allows players to create defensive line patterns and shape the field, play with more confidence as they catch a break. FIFA 22 is available for PlayStation 4, Xbox One, Nintendo Switch, and PC. The game will be available in North America, Latin America, Europe, Middle East and Africa on Aug. 9 for PlayStation 4, Xbox One and PC. For more information on FIFA 22, click here. Commenting on his experiences at this year’s FIFA games, Daniel said, “We brought the FIFA Team and designers to London to experience the showcase of the game and to see where our partnership with the 2017 FIFA U-17 World Cup squad is going. It was thrilling to see the real-life players perform the ‘attack’ and ‘offence’ gameplay and experience the improvements we’ve made with the technology.” HE SAID IT Dan Nelson, Head of Live Services at Electronic Arts: “We’ve chosen our path of authenticity with a heavy
