The Mallow Drops are a popular kind of bird in the neighborhood. They feed on the Mallow berries and make fruit with them. These fruit can be delicious like in this video, but they are also unwell. Mallow drops spread disease. Soon Mallow drops are everywhere and not everyone is safe anymore. You are the Doctor. You have to collect Mallow drops to cure the disease in the town. How to play: Use the arrow keys to move Mallow drops. Run over them. The catch is that you can only collect drops from the air. You have to collect them with your head and then move them with your hands. Good luck! Credits: This game is based on the Sketch by Mathilde Dhinoy/oetem-a-dre. Asus Announces the First All-Flash SSD Storage to Serve ASRock Z170M-D3 Motherboards Sandy Chen, Director of Technology Marketing at Asus, has revealed that the manufacturer wants to make it easier for users to switch to solid-state drives (SSDs) by offering the first all-flash storage device for ASRock motherboard users this holiday season. Intel's X25-V is in production now, and this product will be coming later this year, making use of the new 3D TLC NAND flash technology. It adds that the company will also join the other small- and medium-sized SSD makers in introducing a new all-flash drive that will fit into a 2.5-inch SATA drive. The new all-flash storage device is 65 percent smaller than other current SSDs and can replace 5.25" storage devices that are about 40 percent larger. The new storage solution has more than doubled the storage capacity of previous models, and is also said to deliver an 8.7x reduction in power consumption, 20x cost reduction, and 2.5x smaller height profile. It will make use of the 3D TLC NAND technology and be available sometime in the third quarter of this year. The new all-flash drive will range in price between $26 and $34. "

Robo Vacuum Simulator is designed to be a relaxing game, It's a fun and casual simulator. It's a simple, fun and casual mini game. This game will not engage you with its story line. Features: - Full 3D visuals - Full 3D models/textures - Simple controls - Synchro soundsTousled Hair Tousled Hair is a 1952 Looney Tunes cartoon short starring Daffy Duck and Porky Pig, directed by Friz Freleng. It was released theatrically on July 26, 1952. The cartoon plays on the French stereotype of hair which is commonly messy and unkempt. Plot As a child in the Wicket Bird household, Daffy Duck is tormented by his brother Spot and friends, who would wave a feather in his face if they saw him. After his parents have a falling out, Daffy is left on his own, with Spot, Porky, Foghorn and Horace living in the attic. Being much shorter than the rest of the family, Daffy is easily able to play on Spot's shoulders and jump-kick him all over the attic, allowing him to do almost anything. Finally, Daffy tries to sneak out of the house, only to have his head squeezed through the front door by Spot, who then puts him on a shelf for "safety". Later in the cartoon, Daffy angrily and stubbornly refuses to use the refrigerator, despite his family's wishes. Spot, who is annoyed with Daffy's catatonic attitude, and Foghorn, who wishes to save some food, go up to the attic in search of a place to hide from Daffy. While hiding in a pile of hay, Spot is heard by Daffy, who immediately goes after them, only to discover that it is his own mother who is hiding them. When she leaves, Spot and Foghorn follow her out, only to find that she is not hiding them, but taking them to the store. Spot and Foghorn decide to take a nap, unaware that, for some unknown reason, Daffy is also asleep during the store's opening. When Daffy takes a sip of water, he sneezes and falls asleep, and the children wake him by playing a prank on him, but Daffy merely laughs. After putting Daffy to bed, the children decide to play some basketball c9d1549cdd

Filling out our Asset list looks as though it would be a time-consuming task, but it really isn't. Our 100% completed Asset list includes everything from lawn mowers to snow shovels, from hammers to air conditioners. The Battey QT team even includes our completed list of sample Asset types in the Help section on our website. So if you have your own list of things you think need to be included, feel free to import it. Just pick the Asset List Name from our Asset Dialog and click Import. Once it has imported, you'll be able to select each listed Asset and add it to your Stage with a single mouse click. Importing Assets Types of Assets The Asset Type field allows you to create your own Asset Type for whatever application you are building. From Driveways to Trees, Tree Trunks to Snow Blowers, there are thousands of Asset Types to choose from. Customizing your own Asset Type is a great way to make your Asset Stages more authentic. Materials The Material pane helps you organize your assets into appropriate groups so that you can see at a glance what's available, and what isn't. You can separate your assets into Material Groups as well, but it's not really necessary. The value of Material Groups in a Stage is there if you really want to organize your assets. In a real world game development project, there would likely be a lot more assets than shown here. By default, there are three Material Groups which include Land, Sun, Buildings and Objects. If you're like most people, your gaming project will likely consist of a mix of land, sun, buildings, and objects, so it's easy to create Custom Material Groups for whatever application you may be working on. After the primary Material Groups are added, you'll see a drop down menu which gives you the option to select which Material Groups will be assigned to your assets. As an example, I will make an extra Custom Material Group called "Things From the Disney Pinocchio". Click the dialog, and a new drop down menu will open. Clicking this will assign the "Things From the Disney Pinocchio" material group to your assets. As you can see, the icons are shape-based, so they allow you to select by object as well. You can select multiple objects as well.

You play a 2D, pixel-art-riddled, ASCII-based text adventure. You are a pale-skinned, green-eyed, pointy-eared, but not particularly heroic-looking dog. You save a princess. While you're doing that, you're being simultaneously attacked by the Smog, abducting dogs, and looking for Soothe Tape. Your current adventure takes place on the road map and your telepathic protégé. You can either listen to the story be told to you, or read it with the handy narrator, or type in your own story. Or go insane and keep asking questions. The ultimate goal is to get to a chain restaurant named "Moochmooch," in the land of Moochmooch, of course. The game is full of art. A lot of characters are voiced. The whole game is ASCII. You're an anthropomorphic dog in a text adventure. You can bet your last bone that you will never guess what happens in the end. *You can use TAB to autocomplete text. *You can skip cutscenes with ESC. *You can read the text with the.READ command, or the interactive narrator with the /N command. *You can use the Pause key while the text is being read, or saved game, or another command, or you can just look down while you're reading, while not pausing. *You can set a hotkey for the /N command by using the.KEY command. *You can rewind and play from any point with the LRU or RAU commands. *You can skip the first cutscene by pressing . You can then keep skipping cutscenes to the next one, or any one. *You can use the Keyboard commands instead of the.READ or /N command. For instance: .READ text tells the game to read to you the next part of the text. (saves the current line, in case the game says something that should be autocompleted) .READ text WHERE tells the game to read the next part of the text to the specified point. .READ PPP tells the game to read the paragraph then go to the last letter of the current word. HOWEVER You CANNOT use.READ to read more than
